

Maryam Jaffar Ismail

Maryam Jaffar Ismail (PhD., Monash University) is a lecturer at the State University of Zanzibar (SUZA), Tanzania. She leads the the School of Education (SoE) as a Dean . Her PhD thesis focused on English Language Teaching (ELT), teacher educators and their students in postcolonial Zanzibar. Her thesis reveals that there is an excessive emphasis on learning English rather than learning to teach it effectively.

She has previously worked as a teacher and a teacher educator in Zanzibar. Prior to joining SUZA, she worked as a secondary school teachers and in teachers' college in Zanzibar. She has extensive experience and knowledge in teaching English in primary and secondary schools, teachers' college and university level.

Her main research interests are in the areas of Language teacher education (LTE), Second Language Teacher Education (SLTE), Pedagogy of Teacher Education, language education , language-in-education, language issues in education in Africa, Postcolonialism and language policy, language and power, English Teacher Education (ELT), English as a Second Language (ESL), TESL/TEYL/TEFL & TESOL and Special Education and Differentiated Instruction in an EFL Context (SpEd EFL) in general, teacher education, higher education, and indigenous education.

Email: zmaryamismail@gmail.com

PHONE

FAX

WEB

[Street Address], [City], [State] [Postal Code]

[Your Phone]

[Your Fax]

[Web Address]